The time is come for the nation to pay its debts and to no longer wait and shirk.
It is my belief it does not bode well for the country to have the same old system of the last administration.
We must support our country with the attitude I have described, and not mix up it with what we did in the past. We must not let the people think that we are not interested in the welfare of the country and we must not allow the country to accept of a foreign ruler and not let the people think that we are not doing what we should do.

it is a good idea to have a good watch because you will not be able to see it and you will not be able to tell what time it is. You will also need a good compass because you will need to know which way to go. You will also need a good map so you can see where you are going.
You will also need a good camera to take pictures of the things you see. You will also need a good book to read while you are traveling.
You will also need a good tent to sleep in at night.
You will also need a good sleeping bag to keep you warm at night. You will also need a good backpack to carry all your supplies.
You will also need a good water bottle to stay hydrated.
You will also need a good first aid kit to treat any injuries you may get.

It has been a real privilege to get to know you and work with you this year. As you have given the most amazing work I hope you can continue your fine attitude as you keep performing and becoming the personal and human I will miss you over the year - of course for all the work and help you have been - but especially as someone else would always be honest with me. You will live "while"
and make it "worth it" and will see the cost & on the "real cost" &
"true price" to "try"

You may give them your love but not your thoughts, For they have their own thoughts You may house their bodies but not their souls, For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you.
For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday,

*To sum up the whole, we should say that the aim of the Platonic philosophy was to exalt man into a god. The aim of the Baconian philosophy was to provide man with what he requires while he continues as a man. The aim of the Platonic philosophy was to raise us above vulgar wants. The former aim was noble; but the latter was attainable. Plato drew a good bow; but, like Acestes in Virgil, he aimed at the stars; and therefore, though there was no want of strength or skill, the shot was thrown away. As he came back to the hearth, limping slightly but with a brisk step, Stephen saw the silent soul of a Jesuit looking out at him from pale loveless eyes. Like Ignatius he was lame but in his eyes burned no spark of Ignatius's enthusiasm. Even the legendary craft of the company, a craft subtler and more secret than its fabled books of secret subtle wisdom, had not fired his soul with the energy of apostleship. It seemed as if the shifts and lore and cunning of the world, as bidden to do, for the greater glory of God, without job in their handling or hatred of that in them which was evil but turning them, with a firm gesture of obedience, back upon their lives: and for all this silent service it seemed as if he loved not all the master and little, if at all, the ends he served.

Glowed upon the marble, where the glass Held up by standards wrought with fruited vines From which a golden Cupidon peeped out

Doubled the flames of seven-branched candelabra Reflecting light upon the table as The glitter of her jewels rose to meet it,

*In vials of ivory and coloured glass Unstoppered, lurked her strange synthetic perfumes, Unquent, powdered, or liquid—troubled, confused And drowned the sense in odours, stirred by the air That freshened from the window, these ascended In fattening the prolonged candle-flames, Flung their smoke into the laquearia, Stirring the pattern on the coffered ceiling Huge sea-wood fed with copper Burned green and orange, framed by the coloured stone.
In which sad light a carved dolphin swam Above the antique mantel was displayed As though a window gave upon the sylvan scene The change of Philomel, by the barbarous king So rudely forced; yet there the nightingale Filled all the desert with inviolable voice And still she cried, and still the world pursues,

To special FEEEEEEEEEELER - How could ever do a halfway decent job of summing it all up? We spoke once about what it will be like to meet again in 20 years when we'll probably all be married and our entire future pretty much set. I hope you'll be happy. Being prosperous will be easy for you I think, but in these changing times happiness is the most important I hope we can keep in touch and at least see each other when we're skiing. Let's never forget those past years. When I look at our classmates now I remember them as they first were and wonder how each will eventually become. All be very interested to see. We've had a lot of fun as well as our share of ill. It's good that you were able to get as much out of life as you did, I wish, now, that I had tried harder here. In a couple of things I think I may have gone in the wrong direction but I think and hope that I, you - all of us have been able to develop the capability to learn from our mistakes. Good luck at Harvard. I hope you can get as much out of there. And of course good luck with your skiing. I'll be looking forward to seeing you at the Olympics. Take care of it. Jim (sprang)

Peter,

We've been through a lot together, and I've enjoyed every minute of it. I must say that I am quite proud of all the accomplishments that you have brought to Webb. I really admire you for helping the school

It takes both rain and sunshine to make a rainbow.

The way you did, but now on a more personal level.. Peter, you've been a great friend even if you were a little beige at times. I'm sorry we couldn't have spent more time together this last year but you're a very busy person

Nothing I say quite seems applicable to what I feel, so I'll leave you with a ☺ (beautiful isn't it) and a pocketful of happy memories. Good-bye Peter, good luck in all your future

it's early, about 6:45 on a drizzly Tuesday morning I've been spending some quiet moments in front on my window-open-feeling the cool air brushing my body... thought I'd share it with you. This has been a long pleasant day-or rather night... I haven't been to sleep. A little Elton John, Laura Nyro, and Joni Mitchell are playing so our moment is complete. My room is filled with the sounds of morning-little birds chirping, cars rushing, music and waking. I'm sitting in the corner, now beside my tapestry, under my net and beside my table which keeps playing color games... there's a red candle burning-on it and in this corner its some what dark. The candle flickers-casting-spells on my walls and paintings, and illuminates a (deoupage) of Christ. It's all very comforting, and beautiful. Today is something wonderful-wouldn't you say?

The Elves sat on the grass and spoke together in soft voices; they seemed to take no further notice of the hobbits. Frodo and his companions wrapped themselves in cloaks and blankets, and drowsiness stole over them. The night grew on, and the lights in the valley went out. Pippin fell asleep, pillowled on a green hillock.

Away high in the East swung Remmirath, the Netted Stars, and slowly above the mists red Borgil rose, glowing like a jewel of fire. Then by some shift of airs all the mist was drawn away like a veil, and there leaned up, as he climbed over the rim of the world, the Swordsman of the Sky, Menelvagor with his shining belt. The Elves all burst into song. Suddenly under the trees a fire sprang up with a red light.

'Come!' the Elves called to the hobbits. 'Come! Now is the time for speech and merriment!'

DAVE ELLIOTT

Peter,

Well, it's time for us to all now off to college. I hope you've enjoyed this brief stay at Webb as a boarder. Of course it is easier when you're under the special "umbrella." Still, however, when you get to Harvard there are going to be thousands of people just as special as you, especially in pre-med. As a result chances are nobody is going to be special. So things are bound to be a lot different than anyone here at Mass-society Webb, where nothing is separate of the jungle outside. So I wish you good luck when you get to Harvard. Things are going to be a lot d. freight when you get there.

Now back to Webb. It's truly been great knowing you and working with you on Blue and Gold and 7th Estate these long, late nights. We've had an unusual opposition of opinion on various national issues, but there is nothing wrong with that. We've also had various agreements. Someday you will happily married in a successful medical practice surrounded by your materials house and car and TV and ski clothes and your own personal hair stylist making $10,000 a year; while I'll be living a humble, enlightened, truly lived life in a cabin up in the mountains, making an occasional occasional phone call to New York to check up on my $10,000 a year stock return statement. Checkles? But that is the two separate paths we must take - some of us are just destined to make a lot of money.

Well, I'll be op in Berkeley and if you can around, drop on by. I don't think I will ever forget what has happened here, and you are certainly part of the thing I will never forget. Many years from now when we are old we will laugh and cry. Take it easy and do what you what you truly want to do.

I could not bring these thoughts to any conclusion. A stone had been dropped into the well, the well was my youthful soul. And for a very long time this matter of Cain, the fratricide, and the "mark" formed the point of departure for all my attempts at comprehension, my doubts and my criticism.

All these manifestations, from the unscrupulously invented "rumor" to the inflammatory article, from the boycotting of "enemy" art to the defamation of whole nations, have in their source a failure to think, a mental laziness that is perfectly pardonable in a soldier at the front but ill becomes a thoughtful writer or artist.

Bernie was there in Miami that day. You couldn't keep Bernie away from a Dolphins game with a gun, a whip and a chair. He went with his hair stylist, an Englishman named Bernard, who is related to Bernie only through insanity. They sat in the teeth of the wind and the rain among roughly 5,000 people in a stadium designed to hold half the population of Bolivia. Bernard (the sensible one) finally suggested that if they had to drown, it would be a lot nicer to go down for the third time at midfield instead of the 20-yard line where they normally sat. Stumbling through the elements and thousands of empty seats, they staggered to the 50-yard line, draped a raincoat over their heads and settled down to watch the game. Midway in the first quarter, Bernard felt a hand on his shoulder.

"I'm sorry," mumbled an apparition, dripping water furiously amid the sea of empty seats as he waved a soggy ticket stub, "but you are sitting in my seat."

I'm sitting here talking to some friends about good things and bad bad things & thinking not I got so depressed. I've got two years left at Wabash and next year it will be me who makes the friends and good things.

It was so nice yesterday with you and the Ric being up there for you to come too. You know how much I wanted to have an experience like that even though it's not the same for someone sometimes but I could always think of you about it, even when it came down to small little things.

Hard not to like you & our caring love nothing about life just I am thinking about you & us & your experience for each everybody.
Please, please Peter keep in touch with you and I'm going to have

Take care taught once more

With love

Peter,

It's very hard to say good-bye to someone who I care as a person very much. This last year has been the best year that I will probably ever experience because I learned how to help people. But it took me to the limits of my emotional capacity. I love this school in the same sense you do Peter. I have made it my home. The people are so fantastics and they help to weld my personality together. But this year I am losing a great deal of that love. I will make new friends next year, but not like the beautiful person I met this year. You can't imagine how special you are to me. I have learned so many things from you this year in the way you treat different situations. You possess an amount of power that I have never seen before in my life. You believe in what you are doing and believe it will benefit others. You're right! Your caring for people is incredible. I'm not trying to build up your ego. I just wanted you to know what you meant to me.

You have helped me in innumerable ways Peter. You were always there when I needed you. If I could be half the H-C that you were I would be happy. I ~~still~~ wanted to hug you when I read your letter. Please keep in touch in spirit and remember that no matter how

Dearest Peter,

This was our yearbook that I really didn't want to sign. To me our friendship has gone from simply being expressed in words to something... well, like understanding a smile, grin, (sometimes a frown), or just a feeling in the air. I think that a small, elite group of us have had a chance which so very few people ever recognize or learn to cherish... wanting to open yourself completely to another person and having him do the same with you. To recognize, to become acquainted, to like, to grow (often as one), to experience, and... to truly love. My mind is suddenly back into that slot machine action and I just can't sort it out. But then that's us Peter, we don't have to explain or reassure... only love. Take care, Mike far away you are, I am with you. Be yourself Peter. You really are special! Thank you Love, Jack
